1. 1984 - Beginning of the story

government:

In the excerpt, the protagonist discovers the police spying through other people's windows from a helicopter and knows that the government is constantly listening and watching what he does.

society:

Society seems to live in constant fear of saying the wrong thing and of being understood for having its own thoughts. The outside of their own four walls seems desolate and without color, which we can say that it should be some industrious city or part of the city, whose lack of appearance indicates that the inhabitants don't have time or resources to improve their environment.

technology:

The technology is presented in the excerpt via the telescreen, which constantly broadcasts the latest and greatest propaganda or "news", while also spying on the inhabitants of each apartment via audio and video recordings, with no indication that they are being watched, meaning that one would only have to assume that they are being watched.
